ABFP Emblem

The Emblem of the American Board of Family Practice embodies the story of the Specialty of Family Practice.

The upper half of the Emblem pictures a palm tree. The lower half is divided into two parts: on the left-hand side is a representation of the mythological bird, the Phoenix, rising out of its nest of fire; on the right-hand side of the lower half is the standard of medicine, the Staff of Aesculapius.

The palm tree is the Phoenix Dactylifera, the Latin name for the date palm, so called because of the ancient idea that if this tree is burned down or if it falls through old age, it will rejuvenate itself and spring up fairer than ever. This symbolizes our specialty arising directly from its general practice heritage.

The Phoenix, the fabulous Arabian mythological bird, lives a certain number of years, at the close of which it makes a nest of spices, sings a melodious dirge, flaps its wings to set fire to the pile and burns itself to ashes and comes forth with new life. This, of course, symbolizes our periodic recertification.

Immediately below the Emblem are the Latin words, "Palnam Qui Meruit Ferat"—"Let him bear the palm who has earned it." This refers to the Roman custom to give the victorious gladiator a branch of the palm tree, the palm leaf being a sign of attainment of victory—symbolizing for us the attainment of Diplomate status by examination.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Certificate of Added Qualifications in Adolescent Medicine

The American Board of Family Practice is pleased to announce the availability of a Certificate of Added Qualifications in Adolescent Medicine. The first examination will be administered on November 12, 2001.

Requirements

Family physicians must be certified by the American Board of Family Practice and must be Diplomates in good standing at the time of the examination. The Diplomate must hold a currently valid, full and unrestricted license to practice medicine in the United States, its territories, or Canada. In addition, all candidates must have demonstrated satisfactory clinical ability in adolescent medicine and acceptable ability in standard diagnostic procedures for adolescent medicine problems.

Diplomates may apply through one of the four plans described below:

Adolescent Medicine Fellowship Training - Plan I

- I. A candidate must have completed a minimum of two years in an adolescent medicine fellowship program approved by the American Board of Family Practice until such time as accreditation of all programs is established by the Residency Review Committee. All training must be completed by September 30, 2001 in order to qualify for the 2001 examination.

Partial Adolescent Medicine Fellowship and Practice Route - Plans II-A and II-B

Candidates may qualify by documenting a combination of adolescent medicine fellowship training and practice experience (25-50% of professional time devoted to the care of adolescents) equal to five (5) years as outlined in the two plans listed below.

- II-A. This plan is intended for those physicians who have completed less than 12 months of fellowship training in adolescent medicine. Practice credit will be awarded on a month-for-month basis. For example, a 10-month fellowship would be credited as 10 months of experience; this, added to 4 years and 2 months of adolescent medicine experience, (25-50% of professional time devoted to the care of adolescents) would total 60 months or 5 years.
- II-B. This plan is intended for those physicians who have completed 12-23 months of fellowship training in adolescent medicine. Practice credit will be awarded on a two-for-one basis. For example, a 19-month fellowship would be credited as 38 months of experience; this, added to 1 year and 10 months of adolescent medicine experience, (25-50% of professional time devoted to the care of adolescents) would total 60 months or 5 years.

Practice Route - Plan III

- III. Five years of practice experience with substantial portions, 25-50%, of the professional time devoted to the care of adolescents is required. A Verification of Medical Practice Form (provided with the application) must be completed by the chief of family practice at the hospital or outpatient setting where the applicant practices.

Plans II-A, II-B, and III as listed above will be available through the 2005 examination. Candidates applying after the 2005 examination must have completed two years of full-time fellowship training in adolescent medicine. This training must be in a program acceptable to the ABFP until such time as accreditation of all programs is established by the Residency Review Committee.

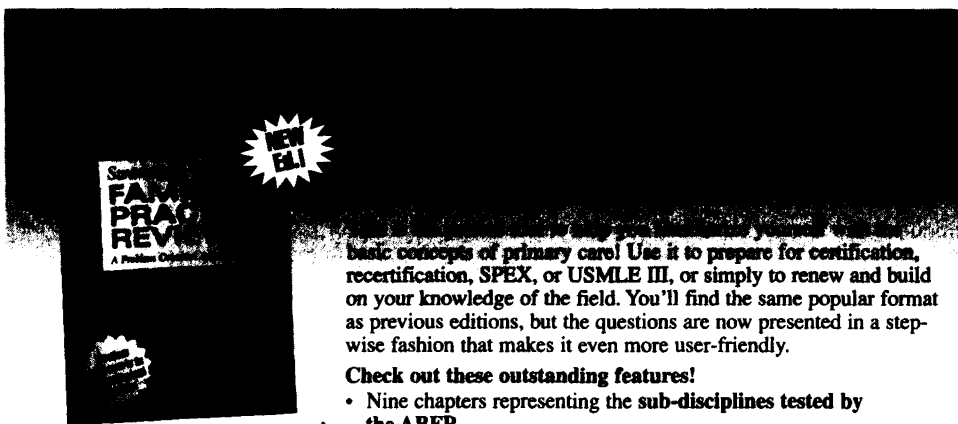

Send your written request for application materials by January 15, 2001 to: American Board of Family Practice, Adolescent Medicine CAQ, 2228 Young Drive, Lexington, KY 40505-4294.

The American Board of Family Practice wishes to give special recognition to those Diplomates who have successfully completed its Certification Examination followed by five successful Recertification Examinations. These family physicians have demonstrated excellence in maintaining their knowledge in family practice and their commitment to the recertification process. Their support and desire to remain certified has been inspiring and exemplary to young family physicians. We salute the following:

No one sees the patient like an FP.

And no one sees the FP like FamilyPractice.com. Her dreams. Her fears. Her concern that the flu could pre-empt her best friend's birthday party, or that her funny-looking kneecaps are ruining her social life. More than any other practice, Family Medicine requires the physician to see, hear and understand each patient as a unique whole, and as a reflection of a unique environment. FamilyPractice.com is a website for every FP who wants to hone diagnostic skills, evaluate research, read opinions, and stay abreast of the latest issues in the practice of Family Medicine.
