Washington

Seattle Faculty Position in Research

The University of Washington Department of Family Medicine seeks a full-time faculty to join our Research Section at the assistant, associate, or full professor level.

The principal responsibility of this faculty position will be to build a strong program of research in clinical practices throughout the five-state region served by the University of Washington. This position will be linked with the University of Washington's Institute for Translational Health Sciences (ITHS) Community Outreach and Research Translation Core (CORT) efforts within the Department of Family Medicine. This faculty member will work closely and collaboratively with ITHS and CORT leadership and staff as well as Departmental faculty and staff. We seek a clinician-scientist (MD) or a basic scientist (PhD) with excellent core skills in clinical epidemiology, and demonstrated expertise in practice-based research in primary care clinical settings.

The ability to secure external research funding is essential, as is the ability to effectively communicate findings to policy makers and other stakeholder.

Additional responsibilities will include mentoring and training students, residents, fellows, and non-research faculty, and, for clinicians, limited clinical practice and clinical instruction. Appointment will be at the assistant, associate, or full professor level (depending on experience and qualifications) in the clinician-scientist pathway, with salary appropriate for faculty rank. University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research and service. The University is dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities and covered veterans.

Full consideration and preference will be given to applications received by August 31, 2009, but the position will remain open until filled. Applications, including a letter of interest and CV, or requests for further information should be directed to James E. Davis, MD, MS, Professor and Chair, University of Washington Department of Family Medicine, Box 356390, Seattle, WA 98195, 206-543-3101, jedavis3@u.washington.edu

ABFM Emblem

The Emblem of the American Board of Family Medicine embodies the story of the Specialty of Family Medicine.

The upper half of the Emblem pictures a palm tree. The lower half is divided into two parts: on the left-hand side is a representation of the mythological bird, the Phoenix, rising out of its nest of fire; on the right-hand side of the lower half is the standard of medicine, the Staff of Aesculapius.

The palm tree is the Phoenix Dactylifera, the Latin name for the date palm, so called because of the ancient idea that if this tree is burned down or if it falls through old age, it will rejuvenate itself and spring up fairer than ever. This symbolizes our specialty arising directly from its general practice heritage.

The Phoenix, the fabulous Arabian mythological bird, lives a certain number of years, at the close of which it makes a nest of spices, sings a melodious dirge, flaps its wings to set fire to the pile and burns itself to ashes and comes forth with new life. This, of course, symbolizes our periodic recertification.

Immediately below the Emblem are the Latin words, "Palmam Qui Meruit Ferat"--"Let him bear the palm who has earned it". This refers to the Roman custom to give the victorious gladiator a branch of the palm tree, the palm leaf being a sign of attainment of victory--symbolizing for us the attainment of Diplomate status by examination.
