ESGIC-plus Tablets
(Butalbitol, Acetaminophen and Caffeine Tablets, USP)
50mg/500mg/40mg

Brief Prescribing Information (Please see package insert for full prescribing information). Each Esgic-plus® Tablet contains: Butalbitol, USP 50 mg. Caffeine, USP 40 mg. Acetaminophen, USP 500 mg. In addition each tablet contains: cellulose, croscarmellose sodium, colloidal silicon dioxide and ferric acid. CONTRAINDICATIONS: This product is contraindicated under the following conditions: • Hypersensitivity or intolerance to any component of this product. • Patients with porphyria. WARNINGs: Butalbitol is habit-forming and potentially abused. Consequently, the extended use of this product is not recommended. PRECAUTIONs: General: Esgic-plus Tablets should be prescribed with caution in all patients with known or suspected risk factors, such as the elderly or debilitated, and those with severe impairment of renal or hepatic function, or acute abdominal conditions. Information for Patients: This product may impair mental and/or physical abilities required for the performance of potentially hazardous tasks such as driving a car or operating machinery. It should be avoided while taking this product. Alcohol and other CNS depressants may produce an additive CNS depression, when taken with this combination product, and should be avoided. If a patient becomes habit-forming, Patients should take the drug only for as long as it is prescribed. In the amounts prescribed, and no more frequently than prescribed. Laboratory Tests: In patients with severe hepatic or renal disease, effects of Esgic-plus should be monitored with serial blood and urine renal function tests. Drug Interactions: The CNS effects of butalbitol may be enhanced by monoamine oxidase (MAO) inhibitors. Esgic-plus Tablets may enhance the effects of other CNS depressants, alcohol, general anesthetics, tranquilizers such as chloral hydrate, sedative-hypnotics, or other CNS depressants causing increased CNS depression. Drug/Laboratory Test Interactions: Acetaminophen may produce false-positive test results for urinary 5-hydroxyindoleacetic acid (5-HIAA). Metagenesis, Impairment of Fertility: No adequate studies have been conducted in animals to determine whether butalbitol or acetaminophen has a potential for carcinogenesis, mutagenesis, or impairment of fertility. Pregnancy: Teratogenic Effects: Pregnancy Category C. Animal reproduction studies have not been conducted with this combination product. It is not known whether Esgic-plus Tablets cause fetal harm when administered to pregnant women or can affect reproduction capacity. This product should not be administered to a pregnant woman only when clearly needed. Nonteratogenic Effects: Withdrawal seizures were reported in a two-day-old male infant whose mother had taken a butalbitol-containing drug during the last two months of pregnancy. Butalbitol was found in the infant's serum. The infant was given phenobarbital 5 mg per day, without further seizure or withdrawal symptoms. Nursing Mothers: Caffeine, barbiturates and acetaminophen are excreted in breast milk in small amounts, but the significance of their effects on nursing infants is not known. Because of potential for serious adverse reactions in nursing infants from Esgic-plus Tablets, a decision should be made whether to discontinue nursing or to discontinue the drug, taking into account the importance of the drug to the mother. Pedigree: Safety and effectiveness in children under the age of two have not been established.

ADVERSE REACTIONS: Frequently Observed: The most frequently reported adverse reactions are drowsiness, light-headedness, dizziness, sedation, slurred speech, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, and rectal bleeding. Infrequently Observed: All adverse events tabulated below are classified as infrequent. Central Nervous: headache, dizziness, difficulty breathing, tingling, agitation, tinnitus, fatigue, high energy, nervousness, dizziness, slurred speech, memory loss, drowsiness, confusion, somnolence, disorientation, headache, anxiety, twitching, fatigue, nervousness, weakness, hypothermia, hypoglycemia, hyperactivity, twitching, ataxia, and seizures. Cardiac: palpitations, flushing, tachycardia, angina, cardiac arrhythmia, myocardial ischemia, angina pectoris, arrhythmia, hypertension, hypotension, pericarditis, chest pain, and syncope. Respiratory: dyspnea, shortness of breath, bronchospasm, rhinorrhea, cough, hoarseness, pharyngitis, laryngitis, bronchitis, pneumonia, and emphysema. Gastrointestinal: difficulty swallowing, nausea, vomiting, anorexia, abdominal pain, constipation, diarrhea, steatorrhea, gastritis, enteritis, small bowel obstruction, ileus, hemorrhage. Genitourinary: cystitis, dysuria, hematuria, polyuria, pyuria, hematuria, increased or decreased urination, urinary retention, kidney failure, and prostatitis. Skin: rashes, urticaria, angioedema, pruritus, photosensitivity, hair loss, pruritus, and bullae. Other: malaise, chills, myalgia, arthralgia, increased sweating, nau sea, vomiting, regurgitation, decreased appetite, anorexia, pyrexia, nephritis, nephrotic syndrome, anuria, anemia, jaundice, vomiting, sore throat, diarrhea, abdominal pain, stomatitis, erythema multiforme, influenza-like syndrome, toxic epidermal necrolysis and erythema multiforme, have been reported. The following adverse drug events may occur in order of potential effects of the components of this product. Potential effects of high dosages are listed in the OVERDOSAGE section. Acetaminophen allergic reactions, rash, thrombocytopenia, agranulocytosis, Caffeine cardiovascular stimulation, irritability, tremor, delirium, nephropathy, hyperglycemia. Dye-coupling and Dependence: Abuse and Dependence: Butalbitol: barbiturates may be habit-forming: tolerance, psychological dependence, and physical dependence may occur especially following prolonged use of high doses of barbiturates. The average daily dose for the barbiturate addict is usually about 1500 mg. As tolerance to barbiturates develops, the amount needed to maintain the same level of intoxication increases, tolerance to a total dosage, however, does not increase more than two-fold. As the dosage is increased the amount of barbiturate that may be eaten becomes smaller. The lethal dose of a barbiturate is reached when a person has ingested a high dosage of barbiturate. Major withdrawal symptoms (convulsions and delirium) may occur within 16 hours and last up to 3 days. Treatment of withdrawal symptoms may be needed for approximately 15 days. Treatment of barbiturate dependence consists of cautious and gradual withdrawal of the barbiturate. Barbiturate-dependent patients can be withdrawn by using a number of different withdrawal regimens. The method of treatment involving treatment at the patient's regular dosage level and gradually decreasing the daily dosage as tolerated by the patient.

OVERDOSAGE: Following an acute overdose of Esgic-plus Tablets, toxicity may result from the barbiturate or the acetaminophen. Toxicity due to barbiturate is less likely, due to the relatively small amounts in this formulation. Signs and Symptoms: Toxicity from barbiturates includes confusion, withdrawal, coma; and respiratory depression: hypotension; and hypovolemic shock. In acetaminophen overdose dose-dependent, potentially fatal hepatic necrosis is the most serious adverse effect. Renal tubular necrosis, hypoglycemic coma and thrombocytopenia may also occur. Early symptoms following a potentially hepatotoxic overdose may include: nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and general malaise. Clinical and laboratory evidence of hepatic toxicity may not be apparent until 48 to 72 hours post ingestion. In adults, hepatic toxicity has rarely been reported with acute overdoses of less than 20,000 mg. Barbiturates with less than 15 grams. Acute acetaminophen poisoning may cause: restlessness, tremor, delirium, tachycardia and extrastoles. Treatment: A single or multiple overdose with this combination product is potentially lethal. To prevent drug absorption, and consult with a regional poison center. Treatment of an acute ingestion includes support of cardiovascular and respiratory systems to reduce drug absorption. Vomiting should be induced mechanically, or with syrup of ipecac, if the patient is alert. Activated charcoal (1 g/kg) should follow gastric emptying. The first dose should be accompanied by an appropriate cathartic. If repeated doses are used, the cathartic may be discontinued with alternate doses as required. Hypotension is usually hypervolemia and volume expansion. Pressors should be avoided. A cured embolus of the endocardium should be inserted before gastric lavage of the unconscious patient and, when necessary, to provide assisted respiration. If renal function is normal, forced diuresis may aid in the elimination of the barbiturate. Administration of the urea increases renal excretion of barbiturates, especially genembril. Metabolic acidosis should be maintained adequate pulmonary ventilation. In severe cases of intoxication, peritoneal dialysis, or preferably hemodialysis may be considered. Hemoperfusion with activated charcoal occurs due to acetaminophen overdose. Vitamin K should be administered intravenously, if the dose of acetaminophen may have exceeded 1000 mg. Acetylcysteine should be administered as early as possible. Serum acetaminophen levels should be obtained, and levels four or more mg/dl or acetaminophen levels or more mg/dl or levels four or more 2 µg/ml. Methemoglobinemia over 30% should be treated with methylene blue by slow intravenous administration. Toxic Dose (for adults): Butalbitol: toxic dose 1 g (30 tablets); Acetaminophen: toxic dose 10 g (20 tablets); Caffeine: toxic dose 1 g (25 tablets); CAUTION: Federal law prohibits dispensing without prescription.
